Sunday afternoon

Gigantic Bicentennial Parade in Daly City

Officials in Daly City are heralding it as the biggest thing ever to hit the city.

Councilman McRobert Stewart called it "The most successful event in the history of our city."

And Alfred Belotz, local businessman and chairman of the bicentennial celebration, warned folks "not to miss this one-in-a-lifetime event."

Both were talking about the gigantic parade planned for this Sunday, starting at noon, regardless of the weather.

More than 187 entrants (perhaps 5,000 persons) have already signed up for the parade, which will step off from the city limits at Mission Street, travel southwest to John Daly Boulevard and down to Lake Merced Boulevard some two miles away.

A reviewing stand has been placed in front of the Westlake Shopping Center where dignitaries from state, county and local governments will observe the event.

One of the highlights of the parade will be the special Bicentennial Marching Unit, stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco.

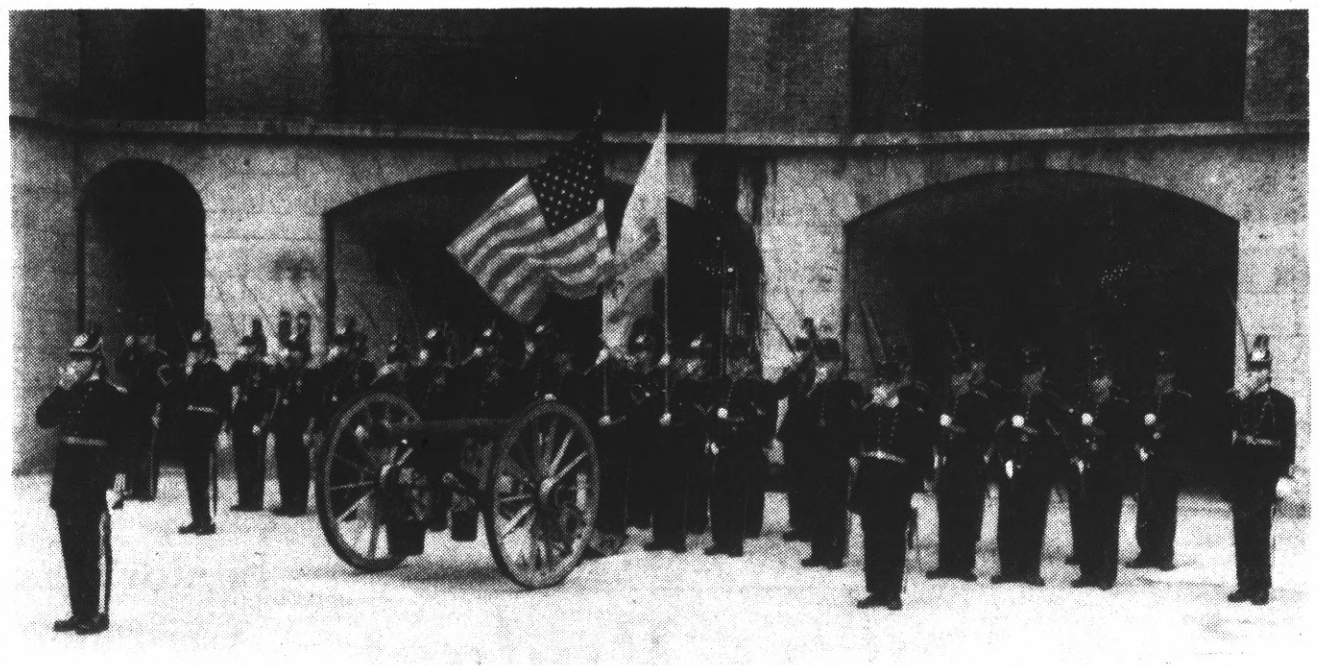
Several other special features are planned for the enjoyment of parade lovers," Belotz added.

Many of the merchants have donated prizes and trophies to be awarded to participating units.

The units will be judged at the reviewing stand to be constructed across from the Westlake Shopping Center between Park Plaza Drive and Lake Merced Boulevard.

The Sal Carson Orchestra, the official San Francisco 49er band, will serenade parade viewers adjacent to the reviewing stand.

"There is absolutely no charge for a great afternoon of entertainment," Belotz emphasized. "Invite your friends."



These are members of special bicentennial marching unit at Presidio of San Francisco.

Assessments Not Up As Expected

Budget Unbalanced More Than $500,000

A reported loss of some $700,000 in anticipated revenues from property taxes has thrown the Daly City budget out of balance by more than a half million dollars, The Post has learned.

Daly City Manager David Rowe said the city had counted on an increase of about 17 per cent in the assessment tables to provide revenues to operate the city this year.

But assessments rose by only 1.7 per cent.

Thus, Rowe's proposed budget is short by $573,764 for the 1976-77 budget year, beginning July 1.

Between now and June 30 the council must determine how to pare the budget.

Rowe has offered several alternatives, including a hiring freeze on some jobs in the higher echelons of city government.

Last year, the city manager froze hiring between July and November and gained 66 employee months — equal to a dollar savings of $75,000, Rowe explained.

The mere mention of a hiring freeze, when seven employee groups are presently negotiating for higher wage and fringe benefits, sends shivers up the backs of the negotiators.

If the unbalanced budget, coupled with the limited access to revenues needed to operate the city, is any barometer of the financial plight of Daly City, negotiators will be faced with some tough decisions.

Rowe also has suggested to the City Council that another alternative to meeting the budget would be to raise the tax rate — something the council has vigorously avoided doing during the past four years, preferring, instead, to trim the property tax rate from $1.91 per $100 of assessed valuation in 1971 to the current $1.89.

However, during this same period the city's assessed valuations rose.

The city's budget also has increased steadily over the years.

In 1974-75, the Daly City budget was $7,569,602. The following year (1975-76) it rose to some $8,231,000.

Rowe has asked for $9,655,164 for the coming year.

Part of the budget headache was carried over from last year, when three city departments were "loaned" additional operating sums.

The thinking at the time, according to Rowe, was that there would be no problem in making up the shortage once the county re-evaluated its assessments in the city.

The general fund had a $35,380 adjustment; library fund, $35,330; and, parks and recreation, $45,220.

For the past five years, the city has put half of the tax revenues from sales and cigarette taxes, and all of the income from the scavenger company franchise, into the capital outlay fund.

Rowe has offered to use this capital fund money for operating purposes.

Such a move probably would curtail several capital projects around the city, it was explained.

There was no mention of what proposed projects might suffer as a result of this cutback.

Another alternative might be to dip into the city's uncommitted reserve fund. At the present time, the city has some $1 million in this fund, it was learned.

Finally, Rowe said, he also would favor using more revenue sharing funds — if the government sponsored program is renewed — for operating purposes.

Most of the funds are now used for capital outlay projects by both city agencies and qualified private organizations.

3 Men Rob Store

Dump, Funds, Traffic Dominate Study Meet

Three armed men held up the jewelry counter at Montgomery Wards' Serramonte store in Daly City Monday and fled with more than $6,000 in rings.

Within minutes, two of the trio had been apprehended — one by a store detective and the other by a Daly City patrolman.

The three walked into the store about 6:30 p.m. and threatened an unidentified store clerk, demanding that she hand over all the valuable rings.

Scooping up the jewelry, the trio fled toward the parking lot.

Store detective David Grimes said he spotted the men leaving and chased them, tackling one as he headed for the parking lot.

Police officer Ray Mutter, patrolling in the area, joined the chase and succeeded in apprehending another man a short distance away.

The third man escaped, police said, despite a combined search of the area by Colma, Broadmoor and Daly City police units.

Police did recover some $6,000 in rings. However, the third man made good his escape with an estimated $500 in rings, police said.

Arrested and charged with armed robbery were Donald R. Jones, 23, and Rickey D. Moore, 21 both of San Francisco.

The third man being sought by police was described as black, 6 feet 4 and wearing a long camel colored coat.

Garbage, revenue sharing and traffic dominated the City Council's lengthy agenda during its regular bi-monthly public study session Monday.

The Daly City Scavenger Co. last month asked the city for a rate hike because of increased cost of operation.

Scavenger company president Al Sereni agreed to several modifications in the company's present collection policy, including a cut rate fee for seniors, use of plastic garbage bags (heretofore prohibited) and an increase in the amount of grass clippings that would be collected without charge (from two cubic feet to three).

There have been protests from various citizens concerning the rate increase.

It was pointed out at an earlier hearing on the issue that Sereni and his five partners realized some $186,000 in salaries and $66,000 in dividends last year.

"What they (the critics) failed to explain was that the figure used is the total income for myself and my five partners — before taxes," Sereni explained Monday.

If the six share owners of the city-franchised company is divided into the total figure the pay before taxes of the owners is slightly more than $40,000, Sereni said.

While Sereni agreed to a lower-than-asked-for rate increase (to 29 per cent from 33 per cent asked), the city agreed to assume future costs of on-site engineering studies and, in the event state taxes exceed $5,500, the city will deduct the balance from the franchise fee paid by the scavengers.

Councilman William Schumacher again expressed concern over the future dumping agreement between Daly City and Pacifica at the Mussel Rock site.

City Manager David Rowe and Mayor Anthony Giammona pointed out they have been meeting with officials of that coastside city in an effort to work out some agreement.

Daly City, which several months ago informed Pacifica it was cutting off use of the dump, pending a site study to determine its lifespan has now re-opened the door to Pacifica's garbage.

Rowe said Daly City was agreeable to let Pacifica dump for at least another six months.

Pacifica, while reportedly expressing interest in a joint venture on a refuse transfer station, told Rowe and Gaimmona they would "let us know," Rowe said.

Two critics of the scavenger increase — Rose Ann Emerson and Morton Harmon — said they were concerned because they feared scavenger company employes were not making enough money.

"How much do you pay them? If they are asking for a $3 per hour pay raise maybe you don't pay them enough," Ms. Emerson, a member of the Serramonte Homeowners Association said.

With fringe benefits included, scavenger company accountant Richard T. Dwyer, said company employes now make about $9 per hour.

Both Harmon and Ms. Emerson asked that the city sponsor an independent audit of the company books.

Dwyer, an independent public accountant, audits both the scavenger company books and the city's financial records.

Meanwhile, City Manager Rowe noted the city's revenue sharing proceeds this year are "a very small amount of money to try to split up."

The city had received more than $1 million in funding requests from city and private agencies.

The federal revenue sharing proceeds for this entitlement period amount to a paltry $224,818, Rowe said.

On top of this, Rowe's proposed budget presented to the council earlier, needs a $600,000 shot in the arm because of the failure to receive anticipated increases in the city's assessed valuation.

One of the city manager's alternatives to the council when presenting

Winds Whipped Mountain Fire

Firemen from the California Division of Forestry, Daly City and Brisbane fought for two hours Saturday to control a fire, whipped by gusts of winds of up to 60 miles per hour, which swept across San Bruno Mountain along a mile-long front and for a time threatened buildings in Crocker Industrial Park.

During the battle, two Daly City firemen, Capt. Richard Verducchi and George DeBono, were injured when flames jumped across a road.

According to firemen from the California Division of Forestry, all available men and equipment were called when the fire broke out near the Guadalupe Valley Expressway and began to sweep down the mountain into Brisbane.

State trucks were sent from Belmont, Emerald Lake and Skylonda stations, while Daly City and Brisbane each dispatched two engines.

More than 300 acres of grassland were burned

How long the small red-haired woman had been dead, or who she was, is not known, said Pacifica Police Sgt. Robert Robinson, who is in charge of the homicide investigation.

The greatly decomposed corpse was found by two unidentified teen-aged boys hiking in the Gypsy Hills section of the coastside city Sunday afternoon.

Service Council Forms

By JANET PARKER

Many North County social service workers are forming a council to push for a more representative share of federal, state and county funds for their cities.

The North County Human Needs Council — as it is called — has met once and will meet again Thursday to discuss the social service needs of North County residents, especially those on welfare and unemployment.

Council members say that South County cities — because they are for the most part bigger and nearer the county's central government — get more than their share of social service funds.

They express a hope to achieve a more equal distribution of funds for programs for the poor as well as convince the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors that social services throughout the county should be expanded.

"I would hope we could move human needs a little higher on the list of priorities," said Larry Smith, a member of the steering committee. "Filling hungry bellies is much more important than repairing sidewalks.

"In fact, it's more important than anything," said Smith, director of the South San Francisco Information and Referral Center.

Social service workers and volunteers from Pacifica, Daly City, San Bruno, South San Francisco and Millbrae became concerned when the county Manpower Administration Council recently reorganized.

The Manpower Council is primarily concerned with unemployment problems. When the reorganization occurred, the six district councils representing clusters of cities were eliminated.

"We were left in limbo," said Ray Sanchez, steering committee member from South San Francisco.

Rather than leave social service decisions concerning North County at the county level, members of the two disbanded North County Manpower Councils formed the new council.

"We decided to get together to form a human needs council and deal with things other than just unemployment," Sanchez said.

He pointed out that the North County represents 30 per cent of the total county population, has one-third of the unemployment and received less than 15 per cent of the available social service funds from all sources.

The first council meeting, held May 28, was attended by 75 persons, including representatives from the YMCA, Legal Aid Society, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the county Aging Commission.

The first meeting was devoted mostly to discussion of the county's Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program employes. The council members, Sanchez said, were concerned about the possible termination on June 30 of 145 of the CETA employes — most from the North County.

On Friday, Congress approved legislation to extend many CETA employes for at least three months; so that problem is temporarily resolved.

The council, Smith said, also will consider the needs of senior citizens, the handicapped and needy North County residents in general.

"We believe we can have an immediate impact on the quality of life for all residents of North San Mateo County," he added.

Steering committee member Debbie Capurro said she hopes the North County and South County can work as allies to solve social service needs. She is the director of the Brisbane Information and Referral Center.

Smith has in his office a color coded chart which shows just where federal, state and county social service funds are distributed from Daly City to Menlo Park.

He points out that the bulk of the 30 or more social service programs are located in San Mateo and Redwood City.

Smith said that while in most cases North County residents are eligible to use those services, they don't always have the transportation to get there. Automobiles are often the first luxury item a person on welfare or unemployment sells.

But transportation including transfers from a North County city to Redwood City can take more than an hour, Smith said.

Presently, there is no office in the North County where residents can establish food stamp eligibility — a problem council members said they hope to resolve.

Smith said his ultimate goal — one he will present to the council in hopes of gaining its support — is a centralized location in the North County where all social service agencies can be housed.

"I think it's possible, feasible and fundable," Smith said. Such a program could be financed by the Federal Housing and Urban Development department, he said.

A presentation of the council is tentatively scheduled on the June 15 Board of Supervisors agenda to advise the board of its goals.

Council members recognize that part of the problem is the population of North County cities. Many federal programs go to cities of 50,000 or more population and only Daly City in the North County qualifies.

But some funds, Sanchez said, are discretionary and the county could distribute more to cities from Daly City south to Millbrae.

"We're just asking for a fair distribution of the money," Sanchez said.

Proposed reductions in county social service programs, Smith pointed out, will ultimately affect the harmony between different ethnic groups.

"It's equivalent to throwing crumbs to beggars," Smith said. "They begin to compete among themselves."

Smith said the needs of the South County should be recognized by the supervisors and county social service staff.

"At the same time, it should not rate a higher priority than the north," he said. "Too many times, legislators respond to pressures rather than priorities."

Seek Clear Picture from Assessor

SSF Delays Budget

Despite tedious day-long budget study sessions aimed at getting the 1976-77 budget adopted by the end of the month, the South San Francisco City Council has decided it probably won't adopt the document until August anyway.

The council held its first budget study session Saturday and was stymied by what it believes to be inaccurate estimates from the county assessor's office.

The councilmen and the city manager chided the county assessor for not providing the city with a better picture of the amount of revenue it can expect this year due to the reassessment of industrial and commercial property.

While councilmen acknowledged they share the problem with most San Mateo County cities, they added it is of greater concern in South San Francisco where some 60 per cent of property taxes come from non-residential properties.

"We've done everything but threaten the assessor with bodily harm to come up with an accurate figure," said City Manager Ed Alario.

"We've tried being reasonable and we've tried pressuring as much as we could," Alario said.

He said, however, that the county assessor is an elected position and a very independent one.

"He's not about to go off on a limb," Alario said.

This is the first time in several years the county is reassessing the commercial property and the city staff had expected a 12½ per cent increase in the city's assessed valuation as a result.

However, the county assessor now estimates South San Francisco should expect an increase of only 1.2 per cent — a figure the City Council believes is much too low.

Nearly $3 million of the city's projected $9.3 million budget is property tax revenue. The deficit budget proposed from staff includes deletion of 23 positions — about 12 of them filled.

Industrial representatives warned the council that it was basing its budget on an inaccurate figure.

"Your estimate on the property tax revenue is low — much too low," said Bill Hern, Peninsula Manufacturers Association representative.

Others said the revenue increase could be several times more than 1½ per cent.

"We don't know exactly what we are doing if it's not 1½ per cent," said Councilman Terry Mirri.

Alario said that by August the city should know exactly what property tax to expect. The council decided informally to wait until then to adopt a budget and operate under the 1975-76 spending levels until then.

The council also delayed action on a staff recommendation that the city increase its general fund by increasing the property tax to the legal maximum level of $1.018 per $100 assessed valuation.

All of the councilmen except Richard Battaglia made clear they have no intention of increasing city revenue $95,000 by eliminating the city's payment of sidewalk and curb and gutter repairs as suggested by staff.

Battaglia called it a "gift of public funds." Few cities, he said, provide the service for property owners free of charge.

Mirri called the reference to a gift of public funds "nonsense."

"South San Francisco always has distinguished itself as a little different," he said. "Some people think it's good and some think it's bad."

The council voted in March to reverse the policy by which residents pay for such repairs. The new city payment policy is effective July 1 and is estimated to cost the city at least $40,000 although Battaglia said it will cost much more when residents find out it is available.

Another staff recommendation to increase revenue $100,000 by hiking business license fees was discussed, but no action taken.

The increase would have increased the fee from a flat $25 to a minimum of $100 based on the number of employes.

Alario said such fees would still be among the lowest in the county.

Bill Hern said he had no objection to an increase as long as industrial and business leaders can discuss the increase with staff before it is enacted.

The council decided to put off any decision until the entire budget has been studied.

The council spent most of Saturday reviewing its central government budget proposal —of which the first item is the $35,600 City Council budget.

The council cut $1,000 for attendance at seminars from its own budget. It also temporarily cut out $4,055 for conferences until an overall conference policy for all city personnel and officials is developed.

before the fire was finally controlled, and firemen from the California Division were at the fire until after 9 p.m.

Firemen reported it appeared the fire had been deliberately touched off. They reported it came within 100 yards of buildings in the industrial park before being brought under control.

An engine company was dispatched from Belmont again Sunday morning to patrol the fire.

A second fire was apparently deliberately set Sunday afternoon near Airport Boulevard just outside of South San Francisco, state firemen reported, but was surrounded by a fire trail.

The largest fire was the 17th set off on San Bruno Mountain this year, state firemen reported.

the unbalanced budget was to use more revenue sharing funds for operation of city services.

Two other major contributors to the city's plight were spelled out by Rowe Monday night: A $53,000 operational deficit at the new Westmoor swimming pool last year and curtailment of some $21,000 in funding for recreational programs by the Jefferson Elementary School District.

Rowe's recommendations did include $8,000 for a child care center; $15,000 for the Guadalupe Health Clinic; and $33,000 for a summer recreation program at six school sites.

The axe fell on a $150,000 request from the Original Daly City Protective Association for housing rehabilitation; a dial-a-ride application for $26,186 (which Rowe claimed is not eligible for funding under the program); Foster Parents agency ($18,000); and, numerous other requests from city agencies.

In all, more than three quarters of a million dollars in government and private agency requests were pared from the final proposal offered by Rowe.

Finally, a $3,500 traffic engineering study report was presented to the council by Renato G. Martinez, of Los Altos.

The study had been conducted in recent weeks at the request of City Engineer David Macabee.

Five Daly City intersections were the subject of the study, which will be reviewed by the council in coming weeks, it was understood.

ABAG Proud Of Programs

By FRANK LaPIERRE

The Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) is mounting an all-out campaign to educate the public on how busy and important that regional body is to the communities of the Bay Area.

ABAG has been criticized in recent weeks by officials of various counties for its alleged attempt to take over the Bay Area Sewer Service Agency (BASSA), thereby adding to its power.

Until now, ABAG has had to content itself with reviewing federal grant applications and assisting cities in drafting grant requests.

If and when the agency takes over BASSA, it could be a step toward giving ABAG the responsibility of not only reviewing but also implementing plans, some officials fear.

Thus far, the legislature has not seen fit to give ABAG the power to implement plans or levy taxes.

There currently are 92 member cities and counties in ABAG.

ABAG released a report last month on services provided to members, including San Mateo County cities.

San Mateo County members include Supervisors James Fitzgerald and Edward Bacciocco, San Bruno Councilman Anthony Governale and Woodside Councilman Nat Landes.

"Assistance to San Mateo County and its (member) cities included housing and urban development assistance and data; planning for human services with direct funding of $69,000 for emergency medical services; environmental planning for earth, air and water; community management assistance in providing pertinent federal reports; and, providing technical support," the report said.

In 1975, according to the ABAG report, the agency reviewed 85 of federal grant applications from San Mateo County cities, totalling $41.4 million.

South S.F. Fires Alario

More than 100 persons watched the South San Francisco City Council fire its city manager Wednesday night — the third manager since 1970.

Only Councilman Richard Battaglia supported the manager as he has said he would repeatedly in recent months.

Mayor Leo Padreddii, and councilmen Emanuele Damonte, Terry Mirri and William Borba voted to fire the city manager, Edward G. Alario.

Alario was not included in the 20-minute executive session of the council preceeding the public vote to fire him effective June 30.

New state open meeting laws require a public roll call vote of the council after an executive session and it was a tense moment when Mayor Leo Padreddii announced the council's position.

"We discussed the position of the council and it was the consensus that he be relieved of his duties as of June 30," Padreddii said.

The council appointed Public Services Director Frank Addiego as acting city manager until a new manager can be hired — a process that's expected to take from four to eight months.

Following the 4-1 vote, councilmen refused to explain their decision.

Padreddii said the council had decided in executive session that it would not make an official statement regarding the firing.

The mayor said the council wants to begin accepting applications for a new city manager as soon as possible.

Both Padreddii and Battaglia said the council is leaning toward appointing an individual who has experience within the state of California.

Battaglia said California laws are more stringent and complicated than any other state and require special knowledge.

OLYMPIA GATHERING

The Olympia School (Daly City) PTA held its fifth annual teachers and parents luncheon June 3, observing what they describe as a close working relationship among teachers, parents and other staff members of the Jefferson Elementary School District School. Installation of PTA officers also was held under direciton of chairwoman Jerri Lessa (second from right, above), 1976 Honorary Service Award recipient and outgoing president. Others pictured (left to right) Judith Fontana, auditor; Kymm Easley, secretary; Pat Mattson, parliamentarian; Nancy Parker, historian, Barbara Wiitala, president; Mrs. Lessa; Carolee Padgett, treasurer.

Mardikian to Speak

George M. Mardikian, owner of the Omar Khayyam restaurant, will be the guest speaker June 16 when the Golden West Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association celebrates its third anniversary at Brentwood Lodge, South San Francisco.

His talk on "The Dignity of Being an American" will portray Mardikian's love of country and belief in the American dream.

Of Armenian birth, Mardikian emigrated to the United States a half century ago. Formerly a sandwich vendor, he has risen to prominence as a restaurateur.

A philanthropist, Mardikian has shared his good fortune with many of his countrymen. In 1947 he founded and served as president of the American National Committee to Aid Homeless Americans.

Following Mardikian to the podium will be Donna Wernar, who will give a vocational talk.

Members of the Peninsula Choral Group will entertain at the anniversary celebration, which chapter members and friends have been invited to attend.

Included on the agenda will be the presentation of perfect attendance awards for the past year to members. Past presidents also will be honored.

No-host cocktails will be at 6:30, followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Bayshore Speaks Up on DC Needs

Daly City Councilman Al Teglia attended a Bayshore Community meeting to hear the residents voice their opinions and ideas on the needs of their neighborhood.

The keynote speaker, Glen Weman, executive director of the Housing Authority of San Mateo County, spoke to an overflow crowd at the Bayshore multi-purpose room on the progress of the Midway Village Housing and its impact on the community.

A brisk question and answer session was moderated by Joseph Keh, who arranged the meeting, made apparent these facts:

- Because of its geographic location and batural barriers, the Bayshore Community is isolated from the City of Daly City and San Mateo County.
- There is a need to organize and to establish lines of communication with various governing authorities to alleviate the problems of crime, recreation and lack of community services, and.
- To establish self-help programs by utilizing the existing human resources of the community.

Also present at the meeting were Millie Pleskach, president of the Board of Trustees of the Bayshore School District; Elmer Aydelott and Bill Showers, directors of the Bayshore Sanitary District; Chester Spratlen and Swante Johnson, directors of Dimon Public Utility; Maria Luna, community relations specialist; and Bob Won, business leader.

Crisis Service Needs Helpers

A training class for suicide prevention volunteers will begin July 10 and will run for four consecutive Saturdays, under the direction of the Suicide Prevention Center of San Mateo County.

Volunteers are needed to join the more than 100 staff members who operate the 24-hour crisis telephone service, drop-in center, outreach teams and befriender activities which make up the center's programs.

Volunteers will receive intensive training in communication, counseling and crisis intervention techniques, community resource and referral procedures. They will also gain an understanding of suicide and depression and how to deal with them.

The classes are taught by medical, psychiatric and social work professionals, and are an accredited elective of many Bay Area colleges and universities. Volunteers need no previous counseling experience.

Further information is available at the center at 274 W. 20th Ave., San Mateo, or may be had by telephoning Charlotte Ross, executive director.

If you were up and around the Eureka Square area of Pacifica this morning at 8 o'clock you may have been in time to wave goodbye to the members of the Pacifica Fifty-Plus Club, off on another junket, this time to San Diego.

Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, tour chairman, has planned this week long tour of the southern part of the state to include several special side trips not usually on tour itineraries.

JUNE 4 WAS A special day for Mrs. Hilda Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Neville, and their friends — the members of Alpha Iota business sorority — helped them celebrate.

During the annual spring dinner dance held last week at the Presidio Officers' Club, members of the sorority and their husbands toasted Mrs. Anderson on the occasion of her eighty-fifth birthday, and Mr. and Mrs. Neville were honored on the advent of their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Janice McCraney, sorority publicity chairman, reported that the celebrations were planned as the surprise highlight of the party.

LAST CALL FOR tickets to the thirtieth anniversary reunion of the Balboa High School graduating class of Spring 1946.

Daly City's Frank Galo, 584-7747, or Mrs. Mary Jacks Foldenaure, 585-1796, are heading up this party and they are anxious to hear from classmates interested in joining in the festivities planned for the El Rancho in Millbrae on June 26.

VISITORS TO THE Serramonte branch of the Daly City Library's Community-Cultural room will be delighted to see a varied display of art work by members of the Friends of the Daly City Library.

The display was in place on the evening of the "Friends" annual meeting and it drew admiring glances and complimentary comment.

Among those exhibiting their art work were Mrs. Myrtle Woodcock, Mrs. Virginia Tierney, Janice Tierney, Mrs. Verna Teglia, Mrs. Elvera Sunnell, Mrs. Denise Schwarbach, Frank Scarpino, Mrs. Millian Fletcher, Rush Manbert, Anton Jovick, Mrs. Irene Farisy, Mrs. Olga Canada, Ellyn Canada and Mrs. Rita Barichievich.

Bells will be ringing this Sunday afternoon at Lakeside Presbyterian Church where the youth bell choir will present a concert of the selections they will be performing during the American Guild of English Handbell Ringers gathering at the District XII festival in San Luis Obispo.

The young people will leave next week for San Luis Obispo where they will be making their first appearance outside of the Bay Area. Localites may have heard their "Moment for Peace" recordings on radio stations KSFO and KKHI. James Groves is the choir director and Kevin Heath of Daly City is choir president.

One Day in the Life Film Set at Library

"Beautiful, careful depiction wonderfully played," are the comments of Penelope Gilliatt, critic for the New Yorker of the Alexander Solzhenitzyn's film "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich."

The film version of his novel will be shown June 16 at 7 p.m. at the Pacifica Library.

In the introduction to the novel, Max Hayward said: "In showing one man, in one particular time and place, in the most sordid setting imaginable, Solzhenitzyn has succeeded in strengthening our faith in the ultimate victory of civilized values over evil.

"It is a pitiless and relentlessly told tale of forced labor camps under Stalin."

The book was published in the United States in 1963 and is available from the Pacifica and Sanchez libraries. Admission is free.

School ends June 18, and June 21 is the beginning of summer activities at Westlake and Serramonte Libraries. Bayshore and John D. Daly Libraries will begin activities one week later on June 28.

Drug Use Decreases For Youths

Alcohol, tobacco and illicit drug usage among junior and senior high school students in San Mateo County continues to easily out-pace usage of nearly a decade ago, but is decreasing over last year.

That's the disclosure made today releasing the results of the ninth annual survey of high school students on what drugs they use and with what frequency.

The survey is funded by the National Institute of Drug Abuse, according to County Biostatistician Lilian Blackford.

She said that the survey results have value to the state and federal governments because they reflect continuous trends in a specific area.

Although not measured, cocaine appears to becoming more popular, according to Kenneth Graham, vice-principal of Hillsdale High School in San Mateo. He helps evaluate the survey.

The standardized rates of alcoholic beverage use among high school students dropped from 863 of every 1,000 last year to 858 this year.

Interviews at Three High Schools

Job Recruiters Visit SSF

By JANET PARKER

There were 250 anxious, nailbiting seniors at South San Francisco's three high schools on three days last month.

The students were participating in an extensive job recruitment program that's resulted in full-time jobs for many of South San Francisco's high school graduates for 13 years.

Judging from the response of the 54 recruiters and the enthusiasm of the students, there's an overwhelming optimism that most of the students will find employment soon after they receive their diplomas this month.

In fact, says Business Coordinator Margaret Purcell, there are always more jobs available to South San Francisco students than there are students who qualify.

"For the past three years, most of those students who had a skill to offer had a job by June graduation," Mrs. Purcell said.

Mrs. Purcell, the originator of the recruitment days, runs the show with the enthusiasm of a circus ringleader. She personally contacts recruiters from business and industry year after year and lur...s them to the campus.

Then she slates orientation sessions with the recruiters each of the three interviewing days. The recruiters meet every influential figure in the district from Supt. Dr. Paul Nielsen to the members of the board of trustees.

From 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m., recruiters from a variety of job fields sit in classrooms as nervous and expectant students wait their turn for an interview.

This year there were 2,054 appointments made with recruiters during the three days. Most of the 250 students from South San Francisco, El Camino and Baden High schools had several appointments.

"Quite a number should get the jobs," Mrs. Purcell said.

Students began preparing for these recruitments as early as the ninth grade. Those who are curious about certain career fields spend a whole day with a representative of that field. They talk about the responsibilities of the job and the necessary skills.

"We're not trying to make business majors out of them," Mrs. Purcell said.

"It's merely a chance to show them what will happen if they decide to enter that field and precisely how to prepare to get a job," she said.

INTERVIEWING HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES
A total of 54 job recruiters representing a wide variety of companies and organizations visited three South San Francisco high schools last month to talk with graduating students about possible jobs. Here Ed Less of the State Personnel Board (left) interviews student George Pedroni.

By the time they are seniors, the young men and women are expected to have the adequate skills for an interview in the job fields in which they are interested.

Each student fills out an information card and the cards are assigned to recruiters.

"I've always pointed out that if they have good skills, they can get a job," Mrs. Purcell said. On the other hand, she candidly points out to other students where they failed to get the necessary training and why they might not qualify for any of the recruiter's potential jobs.

Recruiters involved in the program represent both industrial and office occupations.

They range from Bank of America in San Francisco to the South San Francisco Police Department.

There are recruiters from nationally known firms such as Metropolitan Life Insurance and Wells Fargo Bank, as well as local business including Rod McLellan Co. in South San Francisco.

Also interviewing students this year were representatives from the U.S. Forest Service, the Veterans Administration and State of California.

Dolores Callero of the Bank of America hired about 15 students after last year's recruitment days. She hired another six girls who were graduated in January.

She talked to 40 students this year and expects some will be hired.

"It's an outstanding program," she said.

"The quality of the students and their education shows they are prepared well for the business world."

There's another optimistic report for those who were interviewed by Tish Celassen representing Vernon Graphics in South San Francisco.

"I was impressed with almost all the students except one or two who didn't look as if they will fit in," she said. In previous years, she hired about 50 per cent of those who were interviewed. Currently, about 25 South San Francisco High school students are employed part-time.

"We are hiring 80 per cent of the high school students who have the gumption to go out and get a job," she said.

Florence Knight of the post office in South San Francisco said there are potentially good recruits in the high schools but there are no jobs at this time.

The recruiting session was a chance, she said, to familiarize students with postal careers should jobs become available.

Some comments from other recruiters in written evaluations in previous years:

"I have interviewed more good applicants here in one afternoon than I have in two years in San Francisco."

"Students were beyond expectations."

"Every student I interviewed seemed well prepared and qualified for the position."

And, from the students:

"It gave me the confidence I needed to seek employment."

"I hope from this experience, to be able to enjoy interviews rather than be scared of them."

Shocked at The News

By JOHN HORGAN
Staff Writer

That was positively shocking news in the paper the other day.

A young fellow from Mountain View reportedly attempted to drown his loved one in their waterbed in a fit of pique. Plus he was angry at her.

How gauche.

The bedroom is not meant for such wanton acts of Neanderthal violence at all.

If you are going to have a tiff, confine your boorish rantings to such unsacred places as the supermarket, the bank or the post office.

But don't air your disagreements in that most hallow of rooms.

The bedroom is not an ordinary spot at all. I know.

My wife uses our bedroom as Fortress America. She holes up there almost every day like some sort of great, hibernating critter from the Far North.

The Yeti should be so comfortable.

If you want to speak with her, you must send messages via the dumbwaiter.

She slips beneath her electric blanket at the slightest provocation, piles up enough pillows to suit an Arabian potentate, settles her cats about her and switches on the nearby telly.

She has an earplug which she uses to keep the noise level down to a pleasant hum.

Refreshments, garnered from the refrigerator downstairs, are close at hand. So are newspapers, magazines, books and other media. The telephone is usually conveniently off the hook.

My wife is perfectly self-contained up there in her second story nest.

Contact with the outside world can be kept at a discreet minimum if she so desires.

The neighborhood children know that if Sleeping Beauty is upstairs, it is better not to knock on the front door at all. There will be no answer.

She won't come downstairs for anything less than Armageddon out on the front lawn.

Gamins have taken up petitions to try to force my wife to come downstairs.

One kid isn't sure there is a Missus around here at all. "Where is your wife?" the charming rascal asked the other day. "Resting up," I told him, cuffing him gently about the head and shoulders with a copy of "House Beautiful."

The child persisted: "Why is she resting?"

"Because she knows I'm going to buy a waterbed and try to drown her, you delightful ragamuffin," I said.

With that, the dumbwaiter dropped down. It contained a message scrawled in a familiar hand. It read: "I forgot the dill pickles. Send them up immediately. I have this yearning."

Strange, I thought the Yeti was into roots and bark.

Samuel Chandler

"They're all lies." A recent holds holbs that this is the average 10-year-olds' response to television commercials.

Dr. Thomas Bever, a psychologist, and Martin Smith, a New York advertising executive, set out to investigate how television commercials affect children. From working with children from "middle and working class families" they learned that seven-year-old children begin to perceive a conflict between what the announcer says and reality.

"They find that toys and other such products that their parents buy for them don't live up to what they were on TV." As a result, "the children face increasing conflicts as they begin to perceive various forms of adult hypocrisy."

The seven-year-old has already experienced lies, but when he becomes aware of TV's, nebulous claims he thinks "he realizes that society allows for institutionalized hypocrisy that violates the precepts he has been taught."

THUS THE SEEDS of cynicism are planted to bloom bigger and bigger as the child grows. "By the time he is 10, he appears to resolve this conflict, which has now been building for several years, through an intense anger and hostility."

Bever and Smith report that by the time children reach eleven or twelve they have become "cynical kids" who have accepted "societal hypocrisy as a fact of life."

The Bever and Smith article appeared in the Harvard Business Review in November 1975. Since then other observers of the American scene have turned their lamps on the dark world of TV commercials.

In a New Republic article Reed Whittemore charges that the advertisers have become masters of "deliberate exploitation of cheap responses." He warns with Ezra Pound that such "a tawdry cheapness shall outlast our days."

He charges that many people who should be concerned about cheating in advertising are not. They shrug their shoulders saying with a man who advised Whittemore, "Don't be driven wild, chum, by the little cheats of advertising. We have bigger cheats than those to reckon with in this world."

In the face of such thinking lies what Whittemore calls advertising crud. It is corrupting our language, creating a body of "hard core dishonesties and turning our children into cynics."

SPIRIT DAY

Sometime Garden Village Road Runner and school Principal Eleanor Zenovich got into the spirit for Spirit Day last week at the school in Colma with three students, Angela Hanlon, Joey Conti (kneeling), and Heidi Strong.

Variety of Activities

The South San Francisco Parks and Recreation Department has planned a variety of activities for the summer.

These programs are for boys and girls of the elementary age. The parks and playgrounds will be open for the children to paticipate in sports, crafts and games from noon to 5 p.m. weekdays beginning June 21.

The areas are Avalon School, Brentwood Park, Buri Buri Park, Orange Park, Foxridge School, Martin School, Sunshine Gardens School, Westborough Park, Winston Manor Park, Serra Vista School and Westborough Junior High School.

An elementary sports program is planned for boys and girls 7 to 13 — a boys Safety Baseball League and a girls Softball League is scheduled. Sign-ups can be taken June 21 at all the playgrounds.

Baseball league games will be played on Monday afternoons beginning June 28. Softball league games will be played on Wednesday afternoons beginning June 30.

A boys Safety Baseball tournament is scheduled for July 14 and 15 at Orange Park. All parks and parkgrounds will participate.

Besides the regular parks and playground program, the department is offering a variety of special programs. Those included are:

• Boys Sports Clinic for boys ages 8 to 13: The clinic will consist of basic instruction and skills on the following sports: basketball, football, indoor hockey, track and field, and baseball or softball.

The clinic will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to noon or 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Pre-registration is required. The clinic begins June 29 and ends July 29.

• Girls Sports Clinic for girls ages 8 to 13: The clinic will include softball, basketball, volleyball and badminton.

Basic instruction on all activities will be given as well as physical preparation for the sports. The clinic begins June 29 and ends July 29. It is offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 to 12 noon. Pre-registration is a must.

Both of these sports clinics have a fee which includes a sports clinic shirt, an instructional handbook, and a certificate of participation.

• Cheerleading Clinic: A five-week cheerleading clinic will be offered. The clinic will involve a variety of cheers, jumps, and formations as well as other cheerleading techniques. Girls ages 9 to 15 may participate.

The clinic will be held on Wednesdays beginning June 30 from 10 a.m. until noon at Orange Park recreation building.

Scouts Win First Class Badges

First class badges were presented recently to 21 Daly City Cadette Girl Scouts, the largest first class group in the history of the local association.

Girls earning First Class through a combination of fulfilled "challenges" and proficiency badges include Cory Beckman, Christy Dowd, Carol Hall and Darlene Rusting of Troop No. 716, led by Chris Dale and Sharon Pardini.

Nanette Futrell, Shelly Morris, Marianne Galvin, Michele Rushton, Sandy Stark and Joyce Thompson of Troop No. 1636 led by Barbara Rushton and Georgia Law joined the First Class group.

Jackie Bender, Cindy Lewkowitz, Kathy Hansel, Sharon Scott, Kathy Bolton and Leanne Knox from Troop No. 1620 led by Carole Ann Scott and Marty Lewkowitz were also recognized for their achievement.

Absentee recipients from Troop No. 1620 were Teri Cinti, Michyle LaPedis, Dorene Fratto, Joan Battaglia and Linda Plichcik. The awards were presented at the annual Daly City Girl Scout Association First Class Awards Tea at Broadmoor Presbyterian Church in Colma.

OUTGOING DALY CITY Girl Scout Association Chairwoman Margaret Connolly led the girls in the Girl Scout Promise and Law reminding parents and girls of the goals and pride in scouting.

Incoming association chairwoman Mary Ann Dale was represented via a letter of welcome and congratulation read by Elaine McDowell who also explained the "challenge" and proficiency badge requirements for a First Class Scout.

The awards ceremony began with an introduction of the Daly City Association adult service team by Cadette Consultant Carole Ann Scott who reminded parents that "Scouting is a team effort, with trained volunteers, co-operative parents and girls willing to accept the demanding responsibility of young adults."

MRS. McDOWELL CONTINUED by introducing special guests Margaret Damon, advisor to Mariner Scout Ship No. 13 in her 28th year of Senior Scout leadership, and Kathy Galvin advisor to Panorama Troop No. 24.

Patrols from these senior troops were present to invite these Cadette Scouts and well as all girls old enough for senior scouting to their troops.

Special guests at the First Class Awards Tea included incoming sixth grade Junior Scouts and their parents. These girls will be eligible to join Cadette scouting in the fall of this year.

Refreshments were served by the girls of Cadette Troop No. 1595 led by Sally Raeta and Dolores Riggs.

Le Pacini

Many fans are saying that one of the Giant's problems is that three of their main hitters — Von Joshua, Bobby Murcer and Willie Montanez — are left-handed batters, which makes the whole team susceptible to southpaw hurling.

One of the Giants' problems is definitely the non-hitting of Joshua and Murcer, but the old saw about lefty pitching getting out lefty hitting has nothing to do with the non-hitting in this case, or at least shouldn't if Joshua and Murcer eventually hit to form.

Last year, Murcer hit .315 against southpaws (better than any player on the squad) .287 against righties; Joshua, .314 against lefties, .320 when facing normal types; Montanez, .291 against portsiders, .310 against the conventionals.

Dave Rader should definitely be platooned, as he is, because he hit the right-handers for .307 last year, the lefties at only a .216 clip. Where the Giants are hurting in this "lefty-righty" theory is with their switchers, Derrel Thomas and Steve Ontiveros, both of whom should possibly consider staying on the left side of the plate.

Thomas hit right-handers for .297, Ontiveros for .325. But against lefties, Thomas hit only .248, Ontiveros .202.

In Ontiveros' case this is especially significant this year, because he has been used as one of the club's two pinch-hitting specialists against left-handed pitching. Which underlines once again the crying need for a right-handed power swinger coming off the bench, if not regularly in the lineup.

BASEBALL MISCELLANY: As it turns out, that short spring training may have hurt the Giants as much as any team in baseball because of all the young arms on the pitching staff which had to be tested and couldn't be properly evaluated or worked.

That would be especially true, obviously, for John D'Acquisto, who might have been able to work out his considerable control problems had he been able to pitch twice the spring training innings and throw twice the batting practice that he did.

A regular spring training would also probably have kept Phoenix rookie right-hander Rob Dressler on the big squad from the beginning, which might have been a big plus for the starter-starved Giants. And who knows, Larry Herndon might have started the season in center field, with Joshua in left.

There are rumblings, unsubstantiated, that many of the Giants are blaming Bill Rigney for their plight. Horsestuff!

Rigney has his faults, but he can't hit, run, throw or catch the ball for them, or think on the field for them, either. They are well-paid professional athletes, mercenaries who should play their best for Attila the Hun, if he were the manager. And as a last resort, they should be willing to play their hearts out for their own pride.

On the other hand, we guess we'll never be able to understand the workings of the mind of a big league manager.

For example, Bill Rigney shakes up his regular lineup against the Cubs by putting four bench men in, they break that horrible losing streak and hitting drought by helping the Giants collect 16 hits and nine runs in a thrilling come-from-behind victory, and the next day the regulars are back in, losing and still not hitting.

Why didn't Rigney stick with his winning lineup until they lost? And why didn't he at least leave Ontiveros somewhere in the lineup as a reward for his having played three outfield positions and come up with two key hits, commodities of which the Giants have been virtually devoid.

If the Giants follow the same pattern this year that they did last season, they will have their best chance of winning when they are playing at home during the day and when a right-handed pitcher is opposing them. It will be of further help if that game is played in May or July against Houston, San Diego, the Cubs or Pirates.

VIGNETTE: Randy Moffitt is pitching against Atlanta. First hitting is Darrell Evans. Moffit throws him two of the greatest breaking pitches Evans has ever seen. One is a ball, the other a strike.

Evans doesn't break out of his shock until after the second mirage zigs at him. He asks the ump to look at the ball, and the umpire, highly concerned, angrily tosses the ball out of the game.

Now we flash back. Montanez is tossing the battered, ripped, gouged warm-up ball to the infielders between innings. When it goes to Chris Speier the last time, is not returned. Now the game ball is being tossed around the infield. Speier palms the game ball and issues the warm-up ball to Moffit, who takes quick advantage.

And did you notice that during that freak of scheduling, when the Giants and A's were in town together for

Up for the Playoffs

No one seemed to have much trouble getting into the spirit of things Wednesday at Fitzgerald Field as Terra Nova's softball team beat Aragon 11-5 for a Central Coast Section Region 1 title. Terra Nova Coach Kathy Krolick (left) urged her charges on with enthusiasm. Tiger pitcher Dayna Dias (above) bore down for hitless ball over the last four innings. Bobertz Protests Bump

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE
Times Sports Writer

It took Tom Bobertz a long time to cool down after disaster struck at the fourth hurdle.

The Serramonte High standout had entered the state meet qualifying heats Friday in Berkeley with the fastest time of any high hurdles competitor.

One bump, one slip, two tenths of a second lost — and Bobertz wound up out of the money.

Curtis Perry of Banning, running in the next lane, bumped Bobertz. "He knocked me sideways," said Bobertz, who was livid. "The judge said he didn't see anything, and this is a state meet? That I worked all year for?"

Bobertz clocked 14.4 and finished seventh in his heat. Perry finished first in 14.2. Bobertz' best is 13.8. No one else at Edwards Stadium could have matched that.

Bobertz and Regent Coach Mike Rueda filed a protest and officials promised to watch films of the race. But chances that Bobertz would be allowed into today's finals were slim.

Later, disheartened and a little worried, the Oregon State-bound senior did finish second in his heat of the 330 low hurdles, becoming one of five local athletes to qualify for today's finals.

San Mateo's Mike Smith qualified sixth in the shot put with a lifetime best of 58-10. It was a great way to celebrate a birthday.

Ken Vasquez of Mills qualified fourth in the long jump with a 22-11¼ leap.

Carlmont half miler Wyatt Bishop tied for the fastest time of the day, running 1:54.6 and barely getting nosed out at the tape in his heat.

Serramonte triple jumper Lorens Lebherz waited in the lengthening shadows until 8:15 to see if his 47-10¼ triple jump would hold up for the ninth and last qualifying spot. It did.

An hour after the bumping incident, Bobertz was more philosophical. "I didn't run my best today," he said. "Who knows. Maybe I've peaked. Each year at the end I seem to sort of wither away. I thought — I hoped — it wouldn't happen this year. All of a sudden today it happened.

"I've really got to watch myself now. The lows are all I've got left. I'm getting a little worried. I ran 38.0 and there were all those 37s.

"Maybe I'm just psyching myself out."

But Bobertz is used to pressure. He can take it. Some others couldn't.

"There are a lot of people, like from down south, cracking under pressure," said Bishop. "Underclassmen, some of them, maybe away from home for the first time, without a lot of family and friends to cheer them on."

"A lotta guys choked today," said Smith.

The state meet works in strange ways. For some it was a monster event.

"I might have been a little psyched out myself," said Westmoor half miler Jeff Maxwell, a junior of great promise who barely missed making the finals with a fourth-place 1:55.6 in his heat.

"Just looking at the athletes and seeing how great they are, and thinking about trying to beat them. It's too much all at once. I'm not used to this."

For others, the pressure wasn't bad. Some had experience, like Vasquez. Some had different perspectives, like Serra miler Stan Ross and South San Francisco quarter miler Asa Hilliard.

Terra Nova and Notre Dame high schools meet tonight at 6:30 at San Jose's PAL Stadium for third place in the Central Coast Section softball playoffs after dropping semi-final games Friday night.

Region I champion TN, now 9-2 overall, got behind Santa Clara 3-0 in the top of the first inning and couldn't recover.

Dayna Dias and Dana Grant split the Tigers' four hits. Grant scored a run on a steal of home in the second and drove in one with a sacrifice fly in the third.

Deb Adamis' infield RBI single gave Region IV titlist Notre Dame a 1-1 tie with Camden in the bottom of the fourth, but Camden came back with two runs in each and fifth and sixth.

Sheila Langrock had two of the Tigers' four hits and scored the only run for ND, which took its first loss of the season and is now 14-1 overall.

BING CROSBY REIGNS AS NOSTALGIA KING

"It seemed like just yesterday," I heard a woman sign as she left Masonic Auditorium Wednesday night after the "Bing Crosby and Friends" concert.

I had to laugh because, in at least one home, Bing is still crooning "Sweet Leilani" and "Too-Ra-Loo-Ra-Loo-Ra." My mother plays his records all the time.

We, the audience, gathered in Bing's name, a name that is enshrined in our hearts. They, the entertainers, gathered in an equally revered name, that of Louis Armstrong. The concert was a benefit to finance a 10-foot statue of the beloved musician on Bourbon Street in New Orleans.

"Der Bingle," whose theme song for his 10 years (1936-1946) as host of radio's Kraft Music Hall, was "When The Blue of the Night," opened the show with the same song. He looked fit and trim and proud to be showing off his family. The show looked casual and Papa couldn't have been more relaxed, but it was tightly staged and choreographed by Bob Sidney to include five solos by Rosemary Clooney, three funny stories by FlipWilson, a classical guitar solo by 17-year-old Harry Crosby III, a family medley with Nathanial, Mary Frances and Kathy (who looked lovely in a succession of beautiful gowns), a solo dance complete with kicks and splits by Mary Frances while her father sang "Accentuate The Positive," the piano artistry of Joe Bushkin and at least 43 songs by Bing.

Despite his kidding about "when I had hair" and references to his age difference to his children (he's 72), "the old man" as he calls himself still has the charm and ability to hold an audience rapt for three hours. The voice is better on some songs than on others and when he didn't give out with enough power or complete his phrasing, it was because he seemed short of breath and long of repertoire. I wouldn't have wanted one single song cut out and as hard as I tried to remain objective, he really got to me with such glorious old ballads as "Just One More Chance," "Love In Bloom," "Pennies From Heaven" and "Blue Skies."

Some of the lyrics eluded him but he filled in the missing words with that trademark Crosby baritone "boo-boo-boo" sound and it sufficed. "Moonlight Becomes You," "Easy To Remember," and "It's Been A Long, Long Time" gave him the most trouble but even vamping a few bars of "la, la,la" was worth hearing those great melodies again. Especially as played by the Nelson Riddle orchestra.

Mary Frances is a beautiful young girl who seems quite at home onstage. Her brothers weren't nearly as comfortable and their mother couldn't be heard too well by the side section because her voice is soft and sweet.

Miss Clooney still has the vocal punch to put across such classic ballads as "Tenderly" and "Just One of Those Things." She did her numbers and shared the spotlight with Bing in "Slow Boat to China" and "A Long Way From St. Louis" duets and didn't return to the stage.

If the Crosby family enjoys performing together as much as it appeared, they could raise a fortune for charity with a once-a-year concert (why not Circle Star Theater?) and please a lot of listeners at the same time.

three games, that the Giants out-drew the A's in two of the head-to-head confrontations?

HAVE YOU NOTICED the phenomenal number of unearned runs being recorded in major league box scores? That means errors, and may also mean that either that lack of spring training or the dilution of talent, or a combination of both, have caught up to us with a bang.

And don't forget that recorded errors are only a part of it. Many skulls, lack of range, mis-plays which aren't technically errors, etc., don't show up in the boxes. But that type of play can inflate a pitcher's ERA more than the number of legitimate hits he allows.

THE LEGEND OF MONTE MOORE continues. It's the second inning of a 2-1 game, and Moore calls it, "a pitcher's duel."

SPECIAL MOMENTS IN SPORTS: Two of the greatest and most colorful umpires to ever work the Pacific Coast League were Jack "King" Powell and Bill Guthrie.

Powell was the PCL's answer to Bill Klem. In his own league, he was as great a character, as great an ump, and as fearless as the legendary Klem.

One time Powell made a call behind home plate at Layne Field in San Diego to which the hometown fans took such umbrage that they began laying a barrage of beer bottles down on Powell. Powell merely folded his arms and stood his ground, glaring into the stands of angry fans.

Bert Cole, his umpiring partner, tried to come to Powell's rescue, pleading with him to, if he wouldn't leave the field, at least duck from the flying bottles.

"What for?" bellowed Powell. "Those fans haven't got any better control than that clown out on the mound."

One of the PCL's great players was Eddie Mulligan, who recently retired as president of the California League.

Mulligan is a very religious man and, like the late Branch Rickey, never says anything stronger than, "Judas Priest."

One day Guthrie, a stereotypical Brooklynite, was umpiring behind the plate and called Mulligan out on a questionable strike. Mulligan whirled around red-necked and shouted, "Judas Priest, that was a terrible call!"

Guthrie stood there for a moment, stunned, and then pointed his finger at Mulligan. "Mulligan," he said, "you wait here a minute. I may throw you outa da game." Guthrie then trotted out to the only other umpire, Pearl Casey.

"Poil," he said, "I tink I'm gonna hafta trow dat Mulligan outa da game for cursin'."

Casey was shocked. "Mulligan cursing?" he asked. "What did he say?"

"Well," said Guthrie, puzzled, "dat's what I wanted ta ask ya. He said Judas Priest. What da hell is dat?"

Casey laughed. "That's no curse word, Bill. Eddie doesn't swear." Guthrie thought for a moment, glanced back at the still infuriated Mulligan, and said to Casey, "Well, it sure as hell ain't no compliment," whereupon he proceeded to toss Mulligan out of the game.

County Environment Panel Seeks Members

San Mateo county citizens interested in protecting their environment may become members of a new committee being formed to advise the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Interested persons may contact Barry Nathan at the San Mateo County Planning Department for applications for membership.

The group will serve for two years to help San Mateo County form plans for managing the environment, and to coordinate those plans with regional designs of the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Aaron Jackson of the county's Regional Planning Committee said the new advisory group is being formed, at the request of ABAG, to provide citizen participation.

Concerns of the advisory committee on environmental management will include an inventory of existing plans for water runoff and similar matters.

Policy resulting from the committee's work should guide future development of the area for years to come, Jackson suggested.

With RPC acting as the formative agency, members of the advisory committee are to include citizens representing all areas and groups in San Mateo county.

SSF to Ask $30 For Its Budget

It's doubtful the 1976-77 South San Francisco budget will make the bestseller list, considering the present purchase price.

Any resident who wants a copy of the 1,200 page document — a major expansion over last year's 244 page budget booklet — will have to pay $30.

The city is selling the leftover copies of the proposed budget at $7.50 for each of four departmental manuals and $1 for a summary booklet.

Director of Finance Stan Bara said the going rate is "somewhat less than the production cost." The city spent $1,482 to print the budget.

Bara said 30 budgets and 100 summary booklets were prepared. Copies have been filed for reference in both public libraries and in the city finance office.

Last year, Bara said, the city gave the small document away.

This year's budget, at the request of City Council, contains a written explanation for all new items requested by department heads.

Everything from $75 fire extinguishers to employes' salaries is detailed.

The budget may be obtained in the city finance office.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Have you noticed how many menu suggestions end with "Serve with crusty French bread"? French bread itself is a delicious food; gussy it up a bit and it's super delicious.

ONION-SOUR CREAM FRENCH BREAD

1 large loaf French bread
1 can French fried onions
1 cube margarine
1 cup sour cream

Slice the French bread into thick slices. Place the French fried onions in a bowl and crush them a bit. Melt the cube margarine and allow it to cool and then combine with the cup sour cream. Dip both sides of sliced bread into cream mixture and then in crushed onions. (Don't try to cover each slice with onions, just be fair and see that each slice gets its share.)

Place on shallow baking sheet in a single layer and heat in 350-degree oven about 10 minutes or until golden brown. Serves 6 to 8.

When you are buying the ingredients for the bread, why not buy a pint of sour cream and bake this delicious gingerbread? Since this recipe makes two cakes, you can serve one and freeze the other for another time.

RAISIN-SOUR CREAM GINGERBREAD

2/3 cup seedless raisins
1 cup sour cream
5 Tablespoons softened margarine
2/3 cup sugar
½ cup molasses, light or dark
2 eggs
3½ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons ground ginger
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease two pans, 11x7x2 inches.

Pour boiling water over the two-thirds cup raisins and let stand for 5 minutes. Drain and set aside to cool.

In large bowl, combine the one cup sour cream, five tablespoons margarine, two-thirds cup sugar, half cup molasses and two eggs. Beat well. Sift the three and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon salt and two teaspoons each baking soda, ginger and cinnamon. Add to creamed mixture and beat well. Stir in the raisins.

Pour into greased pans and bake about 25 minutes or until top is crusty. Serves 12 to 16.

Recipe may be cut in half to make just one cake.

Big Drug Bust In Daly City

Daly City police late Friday night arrested three men in what they called one of the largest drug arrests in the city's history.

Police said they confiscated approxmiately $750,000 worth of cocaine following the sale of two and a half pounds of the drug to an undercover state narcotics officer. The arrests were made about 1f p.m. on Geneva Avenue near the Daly City-San Francisco border.

The arrests concluded a week-long investigation that involved several sales of cocaine to undercover agents, police said.

Det. John Kirby and members of the state Bureau of Narcotics Division as well as members of the Narcotics Division of the San Francisco Police Department made the arrests.

Police said Nelson Alexander Magana, 23, of 839 Brunswick St., Daly City, was charged with two counts of cocaine possession. Both Christopher Alvin Stephenson, 26, of 562 San Diego Ave., Daly City and Carlos Raphael Estrada, 25, of 1387 38th Ave., San Francisco, were charged with one count of cocaine possession.

The three were transferred to the San Francisco jail, but no bail has been set yet, police said. The Cost-of-Living Raises

Cost-of-living increases for 282 South San Francisco employes totaling some $350,000 have been approved by the City Council.

The yearly cost-of-living raises were a provision of agreements the employes' representatives and the City Council signed last year.

Finance Officer Bill Anderson said this week that management personnel will receive 7.5 per cent and all others will receive 6.1 per cent.

Borba, who was not on the council when the agreements were reached, questioned the pay raise.

However, Mayor Leo Padreddii explained that the cost-of-living increases were reached in negotiations last year.

"This is what is going into effect. There's no way you can change it," Padreddii said.

The cost-of-living increases are based upon the Bay Area Cost of Living index.

The council also settled a mitted by four members of the city's signal and lighting crew in 1973.

The crew members charged that they were doing work outside of their job specifications and not appropriately paid.

It will cost the city $4,245 to reclassify the four workers and pay them to do the work they have been performing.

Mayor Padreddii warned that the city is facing a financial crisis and that granting the reclassifica-mean having to eliminate position.

The employe's union representative, Peter Manion, said he was not prepared to negotiate with the council in public.

However, he said the work crew has been doing the extra work for years and is not demanding retroactive pay "which is very unusual."

"We have maintained an amicable relationship with the city while solving this problem," Manion said. The crew, he said, could have refused to do the

'Bending Of Rules' Dropped

San Francisco International Airport does not exceed state noise laws and a request for a bending of the rules will be dropped.

That's the word fron the airport's new noise abatement officer, Arnold D. Feener, after reviewing reports from the airfield's noise monitoring equipment for the past six months.

Feener said Thursday he intends to drop the airport's application for a variance which would allow the airfield's operations to exceed the current limit of "75 CNEL" or "community noise exposure level" of 75 decibels.

Feener said noise monitoring devices on and around the airport since October reveal that maximum noise level since January has been 74.3 CNEL.

During the last quarter of last year, he said, the noise peak had been 74.6 CNEL. At that time, the state noise law said the maximum permissible noise was 80 CNEL.

The airport's pending application for a variance, due for public hearing by California Department of Transportation's Division of Aeronautics this summer was based on an assumption that airport noise exceeded legal limits.

Airport anti-noise had been expected to protest the variance. One of their arguments in the past has been that the airport was in violation of state laws for many months while it installed the noise monitoring equipment.

Elwin McKenney, chief of the State Division of Aeronautics, said San Francisco International Airport had not yet asked to cancel their application for a noise variance.

McKenney said the airport had recently asked that the scheduled hearing be canceled on the basis of noise readings showing a variance was not needed.

He said he had advised San Francisco International that such a step was not proper procedure and that the right step is to ask that the request for variance be dropped.

Mrs. Percival Succumbs

Mrs. Emma Percival, 77, the mother of California Highway Patrolman Ralph Percival, who was killed on Interstate 280 exactly two years ago by a drunken driver was found dead in her home at 243 Nelson Ave., Pacifica, Thursday evening.

Percival, a motorcycle patrolman, was killed by a drunken driver at the age of 44 on June 3, 1974.

According to Coroner's Investigator Robert Bergstrom, Mrs. Percival was found lying on a couch by a neighbor who had seen her earlier in the day.

Only recently a vista point north of Edgewood Road was dedicated as the Ralph Percival Vista Point by the California Highway Patrol and the state Department of Transportation.

Vandals Rip Into Lane Landscaping

Vandals destroyed $5,000 worth of equipment and materials during construction work on San Bruno's Sneath Lane, according to an engineer for the construction company.

Ray Mesa, engineer for Liton Construction Co., said Tuesday that the vandalism precipitated the opening of the road some three weeks before the official completion of the road-widening project.

"It was our hope the through traffic would discourage vandals from destroying the property," Mesa said Tuesday.

Mesa said last year vandals "almost completely destroyed a crane rig," slashing tires, breaking windows and filling the radiator with dirt. He said tires of road graders, valued at several hundred dollare apiece, also were slashed.

He said his company is suggesting that the city park department maintain the landscaping on Sneath Lane.

School Site Lease Termed Hasty

A group of parents is concerned that San Bruno Park School District trustees hastily decided to allow the North Brae School to be used as a continuation high school without giving consideration to residents in the neighborhood.

In a letter to trustees, Thelma Jourdan, Pat Chaney and Carol Niedermaier charged that "there are a number of problems that should have been considered by the board before any decision was made (to lease the site to be used as a continuation school)."

The parents called on the board to meet with them and other parents to discuss traffic problems around the vacant school, the lack of recreational facilities there, and other concerns.

The trustees unanimously voted last month to withdraw its offer to sell the North Brae school to the City of San Bruno, and instead agreed to negotiate a one-year lease with the San Mateo Union High School so the facility could be used as a continuation high school.

For more than a year, the city had expressed interest in buying the school with federal money and in using the facility as a community center for the young and elderly.

District Administrative Assistant Robert Barron said Tuesday that no meeting between parents and trustees has been set. But he urged concerned parents to attend a special meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at North Brae.

San Mateo Union High School officials and San Bruno school trustees and staff members are to discuss the future use of the school at that meeting.

The parents stated in their letter to trustees that a "serious traffic problem" already exists around North Brae.

"A continuation school with high school-age children would only aggravate that problem. The streets around the school are narrow and residents have already complained frequently about the speeding," the parents wrote.

They further argued that a continuation school for the San Mateo District should be located in a central location more accessible to the students who would be assigned there.

"San Bruno does not have an adequate transportation system, therefore the students will be forced to bring their cars," the parents said. "There are two bus pickups for small children in the area, and parents are extremely concerned for their safety because of anticipated speeding of high school-age assignment to continuation school, are potential problem youngsters."

Notaro Heads JESD

By WILL E. THOMAS

Tom Notaro, 48, was appointed acting superintendent of the Jefferson Elementary School District Thursday.

Notaro, who has been a teacher and administrator in the district 16 years, will fill, on a one-year appointment, the position vacated by Herbert Hemington, effective June 11, the Board of Trustees announced.

Hemington was released from his four-year contract after two years to become superintendent of the El Dorado Union High School District in Placerville.

Notaro this year has been the director of the district's Emergency School Aid Act program, on a leave of absence from a principal's position to take the interim superintendent's post.

Notaro's most recent principalship was at George Washington, where he served two years prior to accepting the ESAA directorship last fall, after the program got into trouble with the federal government.

Notaro first went to the JESD as a teacher at Daniel Webster in 1960, where he established the district's first special reading program.

In 1962, he received a Fullbright grant and spent that summer with 20 students on a study mission to Italy.

He later became principal of "Little Jeff" (Jefferson Elementary), where he received an Honorary Life Membership from the PTA.

A year or so later he was reassigned to M. Pauline Brown School, also as principal, and he served there seven years before going to George Washington.

He previously worked for PG&E, served in the U.S. Army and helped finance his way through college as a bartender.

Commenting on his appointment Thursday night, Notaro said he was "honored . . . hopeful and optimistic."

"I would like to, if I could in the time I'm there," he said, "to build on the confidence the public has in the individual schools in the district."

He said he hopes to see the central administration become a "real service to the schools, instead of a burden."

The individual schools "are where it is," he said.

Notaro said he sees his new post as a big job, and emphasized that "no one man can do it alone."

Mrs. Beverly Forrester, JESD board president, explained that the trustees appointed from within the district because they believe most individuals possibly available earlier already had found new jobs.

A timetable for selecting a permanent superintendent has not been announced.

One Hurt In 3-Car Accident

Stuart E. Cox, 33, of 407 Gateway Drive, Pacifica, was seriously injured in a three-car accident in which the wheel of one vehicle was ripped off on Cabrillo Highway at 16th Avenue in Moss Beach, the California Highway Patrol reported Tuesday night.

According to Officer Edwin Flint, Cox was taken to the Moss Beach Rehabilitation Hospital with multiple fractures of the ribs and abrasions on both sides of the head and facial area.

When he arrived on the scene shortly after 10 p.m., Flint reported, an auto driven by Edward L. Lane, 23, of 248 Virgina Ave., Moss Beach, was on its right side, and the wheel of a vehicle driven by Bradford Stanley Walters, 22, of 955 Malaga St., El Granada, had its right front wheel torn off.

Neither Lane nor Walters was injured.

Ricky Allen Collum, 25, of Hayward, was hospitalized at Chope Community Hospital early Tuesday morning

Four Budget Study Sessions Due in SSF

Budget study sessions of the South San Francisco City Council have been scheduled for Saturday through Tuesday.

The council will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday to hear the city manager's budget message and to study the proposed general government budget which includes expenditures for the City Council, city clerk, city treasurer, city manager, administrative services and non-departmental items.

In the afternoon, the council will study the public services budget, including the sewage treatment plant, engineering, public works, planning, building, inspection and zoning.

At 10 a.m. Sunday, the council studied cultural and leisure services, including the Parks and Recreation Department and the library.

In the afteroon, budget requests from the fire and police departments and communications center were studied.

Sessions also were scheduled at 6 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

All those meetings were held in the El Camino High School Little Theater.

If the council needs an additional meeting, it will be held at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the West Orange Library auditorium.

Administrative assistant Rosemary Cameron said the council will adhere to the order of discussion but items after general government may be delayed.
